

It's All About Home

August 2012

My recent work is about home. Not always by choice, Alberta has been home for over 40 years. Over the past year, my day job has also been at home and it has become the place I spend most of my time. Whether it is the views I see on the drive between my childhood home in Lethbridge and my current home in Edmonton, the view from my balcony, or the view of my apartment building from above (made possible by Google Earth), it's at the forefront of my mind.
